Council Orders Payment of Court's Award for Land Taken in Widening Fairfield Avenue.

On the recommendation of the City Attorney the council voted last night to pay $515.96 to Nehemiah Jennings and Jane A. Jennings who brought suit for $8,000 damages incurred by the widening of Fairfield avenue. The petitioners claimed that a strip of land 576 feet long and varying in width from 7 to 18 feet was taken from them by the widening and they valued the same at $3,000. The Superior court allowed the plaintiffs $450 and costs, which aggregated $515.96.

IMPERIAL GRAND OPERA AT SMITH'S

The New Haven Register of Saturday evening last, had the following to say regarding the performance by the Imperial Grand Opera Co., which will be heard here Wednesday evening, at Smith's theatre, in the same two operas mentioned:

"While the audience which listened."

operas mentioned:

"While the audience which listened to the rendition of 'Cavalleria Rusticana' and 'I Pagliacci', by the Imperial Grand Opera Co. last evening at the Hyperion was not a large one, it was nevertheless a very enthusiastic one. 'Rusticana' is nearly always counted to openar in grand given as a curtain opener in grand opera, as it is a one act opera. The story of 'Rusticana' is well known by all opera goers, and its most impressive part is the prayer scene on Easter Sunday, when the people of the villarge are entering the church after the excommunication of Lola.

"The company is excellent, both principals and chorus, and the operas were Platt. Second well costumed and staged. It is an almost unheard of occurrence when an audience does not insist one when an audience does not insist on an encore of the immortal 'intermezzo', and last evening the audience demanded its repetition several times.

"The pathetic story of 'Pagliacci' is also well known. Ceaare Freddi, as Canio, was very pleasing to the audience, but Guiseppe del Chiaro, as Tonio, scored the greatest success in Tonto, scored the greatest success in the famous prologue."

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" will be the bills rendered here Wednesday evening, and Thursday evening. Verdi's favorite "Il Trovatore" will be heard. This organization is composed of artists selected from the great Manhattan and Metropolitan opera companies, of New York city, and their performances will be well worth hearing. worth hearing.

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE NEED OF INVESTIGATION

Council is Willing That Affairs of Charity Board Shall be Probed, but Would Limit Expense.

Hence Committee of Five to be Appointed by Mayor Must Find Need of Thorough Inquiry Before They Can Have Funds.

The council voted last night to see if the Charities department needs investigation. If it does, the same committee which makes the preliminary inquiry is to proceed with the investigation, after applying to the Aldermer for funds to carry on the work.
Upon the recommendation of the Miscellaneous committee the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, That his honor, the Mayor, be authorized and instructed to appoint a committee of five to inquire into the need of an investigation of the business methods of the Board of Charities and if in the opinion of the committee an investigation be neces-sary, then that said committee be authorized to proceed with an investi-gation in accordance with the resolu-tion now before the Common Council, and be it further incur no expense until authorized by the Common Council." Alderman McMurray said that he could not see that the resolution was any good as the committee did not have much power. He thought if the investigation was going to be genuine that the first committee should have full power in order to do justice to all

Alderman Primrose said that some of the "publications of the city had led people, who are not familiar with the city government, to get the impression that the Board of Charities was a band of highway robbers." He thought the committee of investigation should have full power in order that the board might be cleared of the stigma that might be cleared of the stigma that had been placed upon them without any apparent good ground for the "impressions that had gone forth." He thought that the appointing of a committee to enquire into the need was a long road to travel, that the committee could reach its destination at once and without going over the work twice. Annual Meeting Held in Headquarters com work twice.

At the annual meeting of the Associated Charities for Industrial Relief, yesterday afternoon, at Hall Home, it was said that the association needs a new house. The work of the Girls' club, which at this time is the most important task in hand, is making heavy demands upon the present establishment.

The lunch counter at the High School The lunch counter at the High School is not in vogue this year, consequently the cooking classes are extremely popular with the young ladies, since they are permitted to sample their own cookery. Report has it that some very toothsome dishes are prepared under the able direction of Miss Eames. Wouldn't be a bad idea for them to give a farewell breakfast or "pink tea" before the close of the term, and invite their friends to the repast. Think it over girls! Think it over girls!

At a dinner given in honor of the seventy-fifth birthday of Hon. Chaun-cey M. Depew, by the Montauk club of Brooklyn, Senator Depew made the notable statement—notable in these troublous times—that, while he was the official employer of more than 50,000 men, he never had a labor trouble. He also commented on the theory of Dr. Osler, who declared, "that men should be chloroformed at forty years of age," by saying, "if the Osler views prevailed, the world would be many centuries behind its present advance." The Senator added, that when he saw the operation of the first locomotive in day there would be 219,000 miles of railroad in the United States, and that nearly one-half of the railway mileage of the whole world would be within the boundaries of our own country. The present generation looks upon the rail-road as one of the commonest of conveniences and has no conception how near we are to its beginning."

PROTEST AGAINST CONDITION OF GREGORY STREET

Alderman Berger Bertilson Lives on Morehouse Street That Will be Improved Although Few Persons are Concerned.

The present administration can find $1,000 to spend in the improvement of Morehouse street, but Chairman Hartley informed the council last night that Gregory street which is one of the most important thoroughfares in the city could not be improved because the city did not have any money. Morehouse street commences at Fairfield avenue and ends in Ash Creek. It serves no one except the few families who live on it, but Alderman Bertilson lives on the street and he is a membe of the street committee. The peopl who live on the street pay taxes in the First district only or a little more than one-third the amount paid by the residents of Gregory street. Gregory street extends from Iranistan avenue to Broad street. It is a street used for traffic between the factories in the West End and the freight houses in the South End.

in the South End.

Gregory street is in the Second district and has no representation upon the street committee. Last night Alderman Daniel Mahoney from the Second district, who has been watching the reports of the street committee for everal meetings past, arose and asked why it was that the committee had not given some attention to Gregory street from Iranistan avenue to Park avenue. He said that it was in a de-plorable condition, that manufacturers and truckmen were complaining of the strain upon their horses in using the street, and it had been understood that something was going to be done to improve the street. Chairman Hartley's answer to Alderman Mahoney was, "If the alderman can get something for nothing why all right. All we can say is that we have got no money."

mion, who appeared at her first performance in her mid-air feats, was hurled to the stage by the slipping of a steel brace supporting the big trapeze frame.

The entire steel framework weighing nearly 500 pounds, went crashing to the stage, bringing down a portion of the scenery with it. That Charmion was not crushed under the falling frame or that she did not break a leg in alighting on the stage, is thought in alighting on the stage, is thought remarkable. It was near the close of the "perfect woman's act that the accident occurred. The house was crowded with the usual "first matinee" audience and Charmion had been winning much applause. The performer started her pendulum swing on the trapeze one of the startling features of her act. Out over the footlights, over the heads of the orchestra, and back the heads of the orchestra the heads of the orchestra the heads of t the last drop curtain swung the

Just as the trapeze start-ed on one of its backward swings, a ed on one of its backward swings, a steel brace on one of the forward stanchions slipped. The superstructure went crashing to the stage and Charmion was catapulted downward violently. Strangely enough the woman alighted on her feet but the shock of course sent her reeling. The curtain was hastily rung down, covering the wreckage and Charmion coming before the drop made a brief announcement. She was received with thunderous applause, and continued thunderous applause, and continued her act without the trapeze.

Afterwards Charmion hurried to her dressing room. Arrangements were made to summon a physician if necessary, but the actress declined medical sary, but the actress declined heads ald. Although badly shaken up by her plungs and slightly bruised about the body Charmion declared she would be ready for her performances last night and she kept her word. Her act went through without accident.

Last evening the supports of the trapeze were strongly reinforced so that a repetition of the accident of the afternoon is impossible.

It is generally believed here that his coming to this city is but the preliminary move in his plan for the return to Venezuela to head a revolution there. He is not expected to try to get back on any of the regular liners. Instead he is beexpected to try to get back on any of the regular liners. Instead he is be-lieved to have planned to sail from Spain in a small boat under pretense that he is motor boating for his health. Then, if his plans go right, he can be picked up by a tramp liner that will have been chartered by him and on which he can be landed at a point where he can join his friends in Vene-ruels and all expres that heaves of the zuela, and all agree that because of the course of the party in power there now the natives are recalling the Castro rule with regret.

The thing that is expected to interfere with his plans is the opposition of the United States government and be-cause of his destination and the destination of the boat he has chartered
